

- ▶ "It should be done on a Sunday, in the middle of the day, with music, and pride, publicly. We are the last generation that held on to the faith of our for-fathers. The conversion would be in St. Stephen's Cathedral."

– Theodor Herzl

“We have honestly endeavored to merge ourselves in the social life of surrounding communities and to preserve only the faith of our fathers. We are not permitted to do so. In vain we are loyal patriots. . . ; in vain do we make sacrifices of life and property as our fellow-citizens; in vain do we strive to increase the fame of our native land in science and art, or her wealth by trade and commerce. In countries where we have lived for centuries we are still cried down as strangers.”

-Theodor Herzl

Think and Write #2 How were the two quotes of Herzl different?

“This is the land in which our fathers
have found rest since time immemorial
– and as they lived, so shall we live.
Let us go now to the only land in which we will find relief for our souls that have been harassed by murderers for these thousands of years. Our beginnings will be small, but in the end we will flourish.”

– Moshe Lilienblum, 1882

“We do not count as a nation among the other nations, and we have no voice in the council of the peoples, even in affairs that concern ourselves. Our fatherland is an alien country, our unity dispersion . . . ”

- Leon Pinsker, “Auto-Emancipation”
Odessa, Russia 1882

We have to restudy our history, which has been grossly neglected by our rationalists, and rekindle in the hearts of our young generation the spirit which was the source of inspiration to our prophets and sages. [. . .] We will then again become participators in the holy spirit, namely, the Jewish genius, which alone has the right to develop and form the Jewish law according to the needs of the people. And then, when the third exile will finally have come to an end, the restoration of the Jewish State will find us ready for it.

--- Moses Hess, Rome and Jerusalem, 1862

the 1970s, the United States began to lose its position as the world's largest supplier of oil. In 1973, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) decided to raise oil prices, and in 1974, the Arab members of OPEC decided to cut off oil exports to the United States and other countries that were supporting Israel. This led to a sharp increase in oil prices and a shortage of oil in the United States. In response, the United States government established the Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) in 1975. The SPR is a collection of oil reserves that the United States government can draw on in the event of a shortage of oil. The SPR is located in various locations throughout the United States, including in the Gulf of Mexico, in California, and in Alaska. The SPR is managed by the Department of Energy, and it is one of the most important sources of oil for the United States. In addition to the SPR, the United States also has other sources of oil, including offshore oil reserves in the Gulf of Mexico and in the Arctic. However, the SPR remains the most important source of oil for the United States, and it is a key part of the United States' energy security strategy.

“ . . . and what glory awaits those who fight for the cause! Therefore I believe that a race of marvelous Jews will grow out of the earth. The Maccabees will rise again! . . . Let me repeat my opening words: The Jews who will it shall have a state of their own. We shall live at last as free men on our own soil, and die peacefully in our own homeland.”

The Basle Declaration – 1897

“The aim of Zionism is to create for the Jewish people a home in Palestine secured by law.
The Congress contemplates the following means to the attainment of this end:

1.

2.

3.

4.

“Were I to sum up the Basle Congress in a word – which I shall guard against pronouncing publicly – it would be this: At Basle I founded the Jewish State. If I said this out loud today, I would be answered by universal laughter. Perhaps in five years, and certainly in fifty, everyone will know it”
